Enduring Understandings/Essential Questions

Students will understand that when there is conflict between or within societies, change is the result.

- How does anti-Semitism, the Holocaust, and Zionism relate to the establishment of the modern state of Israel?
- How are land and religion reasons for continuing conflicts in Southwest Asia (Middle East)?
- What are factors that led to the U.S. participation in the Persian Gulf Conflict and the invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq?

Students will understand that the culture of a society is the product of the religion, beliefs, customs, traditions, and government of that society.

- What is the difference between an ethnic group and a religious group?
- How are the religions of the Arabs, Persians, and Kurds diverse?
- What are the similarities and differences between Judaism, Islam, and Christianity?
- What is the reason for the division between Sunni and Shia Muslims?
- How does literacy rate affect the standard of living?

Students will understand that as a society increases in complexity and interacts with other societies, the complexity of the government also increases.

- How do the unitary, confederation, and federal government systems distribute power?
- How do autocratic, oligarchic, and democratic governments determine citizen participation?
- What are the components of parliamentary and presidential government?
- What distinguishes the form of leadership, public voting procedures and personal freedoms in the parliamentary democracy of the State of Israel, the monarchy of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, and the theocracy of the Islamic Republic of Iran?

Students will understand that location affects a society’s economy, culture, and development.

- Where are the Euphrates River, Jordan River, Tigris River, Suez Canal, Persian Gulf, Strait of Hormuz, Arabian Sea, Red Sea, and Gaza Strip?
- Where are Afghanistan, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Saudi Arabia, and Turkey?
- How does the distribution of oil affect the development of Southwest Asia (Middle East)?
- How do the deserts and rivers of Southwest Asia (Middle East) affect the population in terms of where people live, the type of work they do, and how they travel?

Evidence for student mastery of standards should include a balance of selected response, essay, performance assessment or communication-based assessment yielding clear evidence for mastery of state standards. (Rick Stiggins, 2004)

<tr>
<td>Students will complete a KNL (Know, Need to Know, Learned) chart regarding the three major religions in Southwest Asia (Middle East); Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. This will be the springboard for class discussion regarding the similarities and differences between these religions and how they have influenced the cultures of the region. Students will add to the KNL chart throughout the unit.</td>
<td>G8c</td>
<td>Self-assessment, dialogue, discussion, and informal observation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>After locating and reading about the nations of the region, students will work in groups of three analyzing physical, political, and distribution maps identifying major features of the region. Students will answer critical thinking questions relating to the major physical features and climatic conditions of the region and their impact on population, trade, agriculture, and industry as well as the effects on where people live, work that they do, and how they travel.</td>
<td>G5a, b</td>
<td>Dialogue, discussion, constructed response</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In small groups, have students identify the leadership of Israel, Iran, and Saudi Arabia. Students should chart the varying government structures of each type of leadership. Students should then discuss how they feel the countries of the region would change if they did a “Leader Swap” Tell them it would operate under the same principle as the television show “Wife Swap”. They are to present their findings to the class.</td>
<td>CG5a, b</td>
<td>Dialogue, discussion, constructed response, and teacher observation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teacher creates word wall using unitary, confederation, federal, autocratic, oligarchic, and democratic parliamentary and presidential governments. The definitions are then distributed randomly to the class and the students are to place them next to the definition they feel it matches. The accurate definitions are then distributed to each student in worksheet form (see teacher resources). After reading the definitions, students are to assess their performance and modify answers as needed.</td>
<td>CG4a, b, c</td>
<td>Teacher observation, dialogue, and response</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Each student is assigned a country (Iran, Saudi Arabia, or Israel), a job (socio-economic level), gender, age, political affiliation, and religious affiliation. They will assume this role to write editorials for a fictitious local newspaper. The articles will address their character’s opinion of the role religion should or should not be playing in their government, and what the citizens’ role should be in their country. Grouped by country, they will read each other’s OP/ED pieces and write their character’s response to the other articles. This will lead to a class discussions in their own “voices” about how accurate or inaccurate they thought the opinions in the articles were.</td>
<td>CG5a</td>
<td>Constructed, response, self-assessment, dialogue, discussion, teacher observation</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
Teacher will provide examples of political cartoons that illustrate different points of view about the Arab/Israeli conflict. Students will construct a graphic organizer of the various issues related to the conflict between these two groups in the region. Then, students will find a current article related to the Arab/Israeli conflict and write a brief summary and opinion about it. Student will work collaboratively to discuss their respective articles (i.e. “pair share”). Students are to discuss causes and effects found within their articles. Whole group discussion centers on identifying various reasons for conflict in the modern Middle East.

Students construct a timeline of U.S. involvement in Southwest Asia (Middle East) from 1979 to the present given several key events (US support/shelter for Shah, American prisoners taken in Iran, Persian Gulf Conflict, Invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq, etc.) plus at least x more found from their own research. Next, students write a short reaction paper, where they will choose 2 events from the timeline and write their opinion about why there was or was not a need for US involvement in the chosen events.
Sample Performance Task

Southwest Asia Business Feasibility Research

Enduring Understanding: Culture-The culture of a society is the product of the religion, beliefs, customs, traditions, and government of that society.

Standards: H2c; G5a,b; G8; CG4; CG5

Once known as the crossroads of trade because of its location, the Fertile Crescent, which today we call Southwest Asia (Middle East), was home to some of the wealthiest and most prosperous civilizations of ancient times. People traveled from near and far to visit and trade in the region. Unfortunately for the region, it no longer receives recognition as the trading center it once was.

Southwest Asia (Middle East) has been involved in conflict for centuries. There is a growing concern that this has resulted in a permanent smear upon the region’s ability to develop its appeal to tourists and outside investors. The assignment is to investigate the feasibility or likelihood of this venture and offer solutions that address the indicated problem(s) or quell the negative views in key nations as identified in the GPS.

The task:

1. You will be taking on the role of an investigative journalist for an international news magazine or program.
2. You must describe whether or not someone can convince businesses from outside Southwest Asia (Middle East) to build factories, set up huge offices, and create large hotels and resorts.
3. You must explain whether or not you believe that people from outside this region would be willing to travel to this region to vacation, take a job, or even settle there permanently.
4. You must explain in depth the reasons for your answers citing specific evidence to support your reasoning.
5. You will work in groups and will have access to the library and computers to complete your research. You will also use the information learned in class and build upon that knowledge.
6. Information that must be included (but not limited to): crime rates, education, climate, availability of jobs, cost of living in populated regions, major religions, recreation activities, military presence or conflict, types of geographic features that would either attract or detract interest in the area, government policies, cultural events.

Your final product may take one of two forms:

1. You may create a front page news article worthy of publishing in the magazine.
2. You may choose to create a mini-documentary for a news program.
